Paul-

For lots of things, your best bet and experience will be walking.

For the Top Of, I can offer an excellent viewing experience on the East Side for free, no wait but

I know you may just want to have the Empire State or Top of the Rock experience.

You can spend days, weeks months at the museums. Figure out which ones you want to go to and how much time you want to spend. You can do the MOMA easily in a morning, afternoon or day or less but not The Met. The museums are generally nearby Central Park.

For restaurants, and certainly bars, anything goes today. People wear all manner of workout pants, baseball hats, shorts, t shirts, etc. So dress according to your own level of decorum but dont stress about it.

Thursdays are the night out for people who live and work in the city. Fridays and Saturdays are too but people from the suburbs are also out and about so its much more crowded in theatres and restaurants.

Most of what you're thinking about doesn't require advance planning so work with the weather, museums on inclement days.

You'll want to visit the financial center during business hours probably.

"Not for me"; 1="Okay to do" ;
2="Very Keen to do")
