Dear Sylvia

To night (Mon) there is going to be a protest demonstration of mothers against the boost in milk prices, so your mom is one of the participants, they are leaving the Henry Street Settlement. in 5 Buses? to some key spot. I can picture mom, she is always in the midst of things: so I'm taking this opportunity to write to you without being molested.

I was at Vicki's house to day and enjoyed myself playing with the twins and Cathy came with her brood, but believe me, when those two get together they have so much to talk and giggle about than any two people I've ever heard. They ignore the kids entirely, they realize I'm there and am watching them, Cathy is a real child, she does any and every thing those kids want her to

You may notice I am tearing paper from a note book for writing paper. Hope you don't mind

de, for instance to-day she bought Bonnie a tin toy and paid 60 cents for it and Bonnie wanted the same thing and he yelled until she went out and bought him one too.

well they had the toys just about 3 minutes. when they broke them, now just to show you the difference between her and your MOM. well mom goes out every once in a while on her shop-ing tours and picks up a toy on one of the pushcarts for about 2 or 3 cents and the kids play with them for hours when they are at our house. and she still has them. So you see what I'm driving at. Cathy doesn't know the value of money. and at the same time she is spoiling the kids. but you cant tell her differently. where as Vicki is entirely different - she probably suffered in the war days in England, as mom did during the Russo-Jap war in her days. and sticks with her. Cathy poor kid don't understand and I'm trying to the best of my ability (without hurting her feelings) to teach her, but it seems hopeless.

Johnnie bought Deedee an overall suit with hood and all, a one piece affair, and does she look cute. he's going to try Johnnie on and fit this pay day.

Really I don't know what to do this Thanksgiving, we are trying to arrange to have dinner at Johnnie's house, but somehow we can't get together on it. I hope every thing will turn out all right, because Jeanette & Chris. will be in for ~~dinner~~ the holiday, last year they were at our house and we put up a wonderful spread, and I know everyone enjoyed it. Bubby suggested that we all chip in, so as to take all responsibility off mom's shoulders, which I thought was a good idea. In. morrow we are going to establish our selves and get to gether on this. and I will let you know briefly how we will plan. and I will also give you info on Ray, as soon as Bubby comes in to morrow, he has her address and phone no. incidently she is still in Cleveland.

I was to the doctor Saturday and had a check up. and things don't look so bright, he says I'm to active and should have plenty of rest and take things easy, and also noticed the drop in my weight. he advised me to cut down on the whiskey diet. and said although my blood pressure is low, my heart condition is improving. I wish I had something to do so as to keep my mind occupied, and earn a few dollars, so as not ~~to~~ to have mom worrying. Surely there must be something for me to do

Well honey its 12 night and mom is not home yet and will have to wait till morning to mail this letter.

There's lots of things I want to write you but just cant think. Oh yes lets forget what I wrote in that big letter, now that you explained matters to me. If I hurt you in any way I herewith apologize. with your acceptance.

With Love
As Ever

Mom + Dad.

P.S. drop a card now & ~~they~~ they will be appreciated.

to help mom along, she has been so good to me, and she is getting impatient and I can't blame her a bit.

Well you were telling me about my skimpy letter, truthfully I was in a hurry to answer you and I didn't realize what I was doing, I thought it would skip your attention but - no; it didn't work.

Your letter was a very nice one and mom read it through and through always with a smile on her face and stopping now and then to explain a word or two.

Janette will have her first anniversary Dec. 20th and for we that is mom and I would like to give her a gift. Well what would you suggest. I'm not up on these things so I hope you don't mind me asking you for advice.
